

Lost Cause in Paradise

They were fair and they were blond
Laughing loud and singing songs
Hoping for the best in life
Heading for a paradise
In the flash of an eye was formed
What would grow to become a storm
Then the fountain of youth was sprung
Lost and gone, everyone.

In the man is a child alive
To know and feel how to survive
But the world is as cold as ice
When he looks for paradise.
All men have the thirst to fight
The golden dawn isn't lost to sight
The world turns as cold as ice
A lost cause in paradise.

They were fair, and they were blond,
Laughing loud and singing songs,
But the world was as cold as ice,
A lost cause in paradise.
